On the day of successful manufacture, he tried it with his son. The son who had just returned from school when he brought the robot out asked:

- Why are you late for school?

- I went to my house to borrow books to study.

The robot detects a lie and gives it to his son.

The father laughed:

- You see, lying is punished. At the same age as the father did not dare lie to his grandfather.

Immediately, the robot kicked him into the wall.
