

The behind-the-scenes photo series demonstrates the magic of Photoshop, turning ordinary props into works of art

Here are behind-the-scenes photos that illustrate how photographer Chris Hernandez makes simple things as smooth as ever.

Photoshop is very miraculous, with just a few simple tools, a blink and a sample of this photo editing application can create extremely cool virtual pictures "no worse" than the artwork.

If you do not believe, you can go to @cnhphotography account of photographer Chris Hernandez to see the photos behind the scenes depicting how he creates beautiful photos on social networks. Surely you will be amazed and enjoy the way this photographer makes simple things become "to-the-smooth" than ever.

The house has a swimming pool, then take advantage of making some types of photos.

Next to the house there are beautiful flowering trees, taking each other out to take pictures.

Go to the meadow and bring a glass with few colors to paint, so you can also take simple but very "virtual" pictures.

Bushes can also help you get great photos.

A carton with a few kgs of lemon, you will have a 'fresh green' photo.

A dead bush can also help you take photos that are surprisingly impressive.

If there's no place to take pictures, it's easiest to just lie out in the middle of the road. You will get a surprisingly beautiful picture, but pay attention to when there are no dangerous vehicles lest.

As long as you put on makeup and a wooden cupboard, Photoshop will help you to get an impressive "Narnia Chronicle" film cover.

Going to the river bank to take pictures but not with the river but to choose the violin.

Simple, just paint the face color, impressive is enough to have a beautiful picture.

Angel photography has never been this simple.

The picture is full of magic and the truth behind it makes many people laugh.
