

The Best Areas to Rent an Office in London

Finding the best place to rent an office space in London can seem like an onerous task for start-ups or even a well-established company.

Thankfully, it doesn't have to cause any major stress or hassle - and there's never been a better time to find somewhere if a new workplace is needed in the UK's capital city.

Feeling stuck for inspiration? Here are some of the best areas to rent an office in London.

Picture 1 of The Best Areas to Rent an Office in London

Saunter down to Shoreditch

Shoreditch is one of the most sought after areas to find a serviced office space in London. It's become a real haven for any kind of tech start-up, or as a location for businesses that rely on a go-getting attitude.

It's also seen as a brilliant area for those with a young entrepreneurial spirit and it most definitely has the energy and vibrancy to match.

Plus, it's an area that has great transport links and is easily commutable into the city centre itself, making it great for after-work socialising or business meetings.

Maybe it's Mayfair

How about an area that carries with it real prestige? Mayfair is sought after by those who want a really exclusive postcode and the kudos that comes from choosing to have office space there.

Lying within the esteemed City of Westminster, it also has a huge legacy and history of businesses that have chosen to make it their home. A perfect choice for those with a company that already has a rich heritage and wants to improve its standing.

Catch a look at Canary Wharf

This is a space in East London that's renowned for housing lots of finance offices and institutions. It has a reputation for wanting new businesses that attract high-level clients and opportunities.

However, over the last decade or so - whilst finance has been a priority, there has also been a move to try and diversify a little. So now there are different areas of business looking to expand into this sought-after location, most notably technology start ups.

Hand it to Hammersmith

If you're thinking ahead to the future, part of that is trying to work out where 'the next big place' will be in London that everyone wants to decamp their business to. Some experts are suggesting that Hammersmith is it.

Perhaps best of all, Hammersmith is ideally placed - not only a prime location with good transport links to take clients in and out of the city centre, but it also has plenty of opportunities for shopping and eating out. It's perfect for entertaining and hosting business meetings in a relaxed environment.

Many say this area has much more of a community feel to it than other places in London – so if you want to take a friendly approach to your office space, Hammersmith may be the place to go.

Seek out Soho

There's something really unique about Soho. It's always been an office space outlier in London, but it's making its mark now.

It has a strong reputation for finance and technology start-ups and is seen as a place of real innovation. It's well placed for visiting areas like Tottenham Court Road and Covent Garden - again ideal for the more social aspects of a business.

Conclusion

Finding somewhere to rent an office space in London has never been easier. There's so much to choose from and you can be sure to obtain somewhere that meets all your business and your client's needs.

You finished reading the article "The Best Areas to Rent an Office in London" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.