Muichiro Vs. Gyokko

Tokito finds lost memories

Arc: Swordsmith Village

Mist Hashira is a mystery to readers from the moment he appears. He is always aloof, and his silly conversations make no sense. But deep down, Muichiro is lost because he has no memories of his early life and can barely remember anything to find his true identity.

But when he confronts Gyokko in the Swordsmith Village and nearly loses his life, he suddenly remembers the horrifying truth about his family and the final moments of his twin brother. Those memories change Tokito, giving him a purpose in life. When he simultaneously awakens the Demon Slayer Seal, the battle with Gyokko becomes an overwhelming one, revealing why the Mist Pillar is so highly regarded. Each move is beautifully drawn, and the illustrations perfectly capture Muichiro's unique talent.

Akaza Vs. Kyojuro Rengoku

Akaza reveals the true power of the Upper Moon

Arc: Mugen Train

In the Mugen Ship arc, after Tanjiro and his friends defeated Rui, it seemed like they had completed their mission. But strangely, Upper Moon Akaza appeared when the assassins were exhausted after a long battle. As the only Hashira there, Kyojuro Rengoku confronted the demon himself.

This leads to an epic clash that reveals the Fire Hashira's heroic and selfless nature. The battle between Rengoku and Akaza is an emotional rollercoaster that keeps the reader on their toes from start to finish. After the dust settles, Tanjiro and his friends are never the same again.

Gyutaro and Daki vs Tanjiro, Zenitsu, Inosuke and Tengen

Tanjiro's First Battle with Upper Moon

Arc: Entertainment District

During the Amusement Park arc, Tanjiro and his friends faced one of their greatest challenges when they fought the Upper Rank Six brothers Gyutaro and Daki. Having never fought an Upper Rank before, they quickly realized their haunting power and were pushed to the brink of having to adapt or die.

The brutal battle that ensued almost pushed them to their deaths, turning the battle into a fierce test of their resolve and will. Gyutaro's relentless fighting style was perfectly complemented by his younger sister Daki. The duo were ruthless, and their sinister worldviews made the battle an unforgettable experience for fans, who sympathized with them upon learning about their troubled pasts.

Kokushibo vs Gyomei, Muichiro, Sanemi and Genya

Thuong Huyen reveals his true power

Arc: Infinity Castle

Kokushibo the First Class has always been a mysterious demon, his life remained a mystery to fans until the battle at the Infinity Castle. When he finally fought the greatest swordsmen of the Taisho era, he not only revealed his power but also revealed the most terrifying secrets that had been hidden for centuries.

The battle of Kokushibo is intense and emotional; it forces Gyomei, Sanemi, Genya, and Muichiro to reinvent themselves and make unimaginable sacrifices. Every moment of the battle is filled with unexpected twists and turns, keeping the reader hooked to the end.

Akaza vs Tanjiro and Giyu Tomioka

Tanjiro Revenge Kyojuro Rengoku

Arc: Infinity Castle

Ever since Akaza murdered the Fire Hashira Kyojuro Rengoku right before his eyes, Tanjiro has been driven by the desire for revenge. During the Infinity Castle arc, when he aimed to fight Muzan Kibutsuji, Kamado, along with Giyu Tomioka, was pushed into the fight against Akaza.

The simmering feelings of revenge inside Tanjiro finally explode into a fierce battle that burns his soul. Akaza's indifference and lack of remorse only makes the battle more intense, pushing the fighters to their physical limits. Rengoku's death has always been considered the saddest moment of the series, so Tanjiro and Giyu's fight with Akaza provides the much-needed emotional release that fans have long craved.
