

The crow squats like a gorilla that confuses the Internet and the truth is surprisingly simple

It was also a pure black color from head to toe, but many people at first glance would think the main character in the video was a muscular gorilla fighting two front limbs on the floor.

On June 22, an account called LlamaInaTux posted a short video of only 7 seconds on Twitter, which made netizens confused. Why, because in the video is a crow with an extremely strange shape.

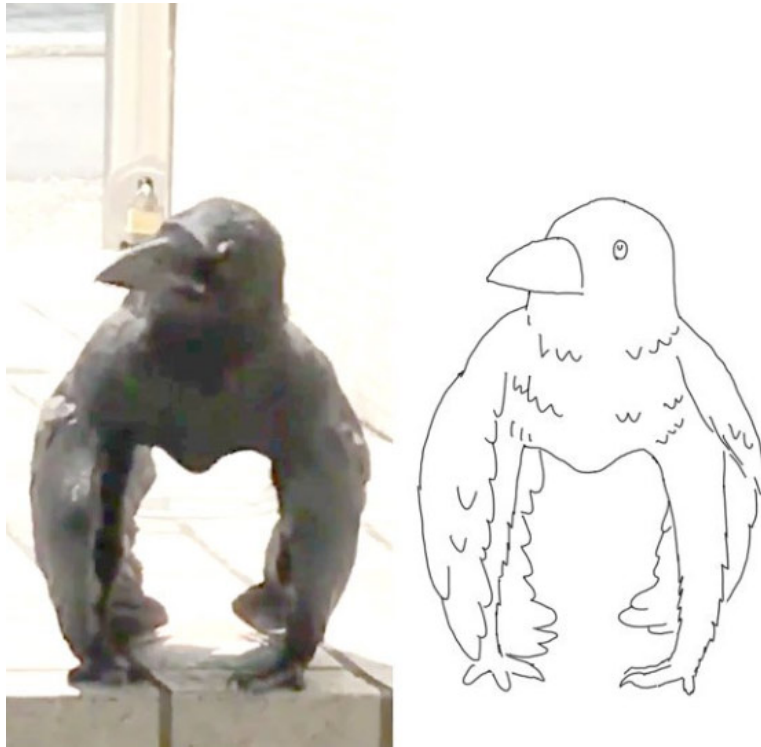

It was also a pure black color from head to toe, but many people at first glance would think the main character in the video was a muscular gorilla fighting two front limbs on the floor. But when I looked closely, it turned out to be a strange, black crow.

Is this a raven or a crow crow? Many people have asked this question after viewing the image below.

But the truth was extremely simple because of the angle of rotation, the black crow's wings had covered the two legs, causing viewers to be fooled.

Although the answer has been answered, netizens are still very excited and have come up with many interesting inventions about this "gorilla cosplay" character.

This drawing helps the viewer to uncover the secret of the strange standing posture showing off the crow's disguised muscles. (Photo: Twitter / @ a_ane74).

Superman crow, did you know this new hero character! (Photo: Twitter / @ nbrnsk).

Black crow "cool" the earth. (Photo: Twitter / @ yamagatasyohei).

What about you, for the first time, what do you think the main character in the clip is, gorilla, raven or monkey hybrid crows like in the picture?

You finished reading the article "The crow squats like a gorilla that confuses the Internet and the truth is surprisingly simple" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.