3. 25 things women say that men often misunderstand.

Life always finds wonderful ways to teach us lessons we thought we already understood. For example, understanding the difference between boys and men. The simplest logic is that we want to date someone who respects women, gives us peace of mind, and allows us to express ourselves freely. But life isn't always like that; sometimes we end up dating people who are unfortunately at odds with our personalities, life views, or even childish and rude, completely distorting our understanding of men.

Don't let that make you 'close the door' to your heart. Not all men in the world are like that. In fact, there are some who look masculine on the outside but haven't truly matured. So how do you know the difference between boys and men? It's not as difficult as you think. Real men always have special qualities. The article below will tell you how men and boys differ .

1. Sons complain - Men cry

Teenage boys aren't mature enough to express their emotions properly. Instead of clearly stating their problems, boys tend to complain about everything. In contrast, men aren't afraid to speak their minds, and if necessary, they'll cry. Boys often assume, "Real men don't cry ." But in reality, a man's words are connected to his emotions, and he knows how to talk about the things he's experiencing in life.

2. Boys are in a hurry - Men are calm.

Men often believe life is a race, and whoever crosses the finish line first wins. They rush to the finish line without appreciating anything that comes their way. However, true men understand that each of us only lives one life, a rather short one, so every passing minute should be spent contemplating many things. They don't rush to "here ," where "here " might be. They walk through life slowly, at a moderate pace, enough to feel everything around them.

3. Son seeks revenge - Man forgives

When a boy is insulted or hurt, his first reaction is usually to retaliate. He will do anything to get revenge on anyone who dares to touch him, even if it's wrong or affects his reputation. But men are different. Their first reaction is to reconcile, avoiding further conflict and damage to both parties. If a man disagrees with the woman he loves, he will resolve it with a warm hug rather than resorting to violence.

4. Selfish sons - Trusting men

Men always try to hold on tight to what they " own ." They know what's theirs and don't want anyone touching it. This leads to some unhealthy, deviant behaviors in romantic relationships. Men know what belongs to them, but they trust that it won't betray them. A true man can trust his woman and feel no need to monitor her every move.

5. Boys pretend - Men don't.

Boys often present themselves as role models to their friends and others, including their girlfriends. They might play the prince charming for a moment and then suddenly realize they don't fit in, or rather, they're faking it. Men, on the other hand, are completely different. They show everyone their true selves, no matter the situation or circumstance. They don't pretend to be someone else, because that wouldn't be them, even if it makes people dislike them.

6. Sons live dependently - Men live independently.

Boys often have a difficult, uncomfortable time doing what they like. They can't make decisions without parental interference. Although they might deny it, the reality is they lack what could be called their own freedom. Men, on the other hand, are capable of " unleashing " their safety harnesses and making their own life decisions. They recognize the importance of parental advice, but they will do what feels best for them.

7. Sons are calculating - Men are generous.

Sons are often calculating, greedy, and rarely generous when it comes to money/possessions. They think the world owes them something and that money will get them everything in life. But for men, it's different; they see money as nothing more than a necessity in life. They don't mind treating their woman like a queen because she is worth more than any amount of money. They are always comfortable with themselves and their possessions because they understand what truly matters in their lives.

8. Sons criticize - Men praise

Boys often focus on the flaws rather than the good. Instead of complimenting his girlfriend's new outfit, he'll concentrate on her messy hair and ugly shoes. Men always know a woman's worth and do everything they can to make her realize it. A real man will make his woman feel happy and appreciate her value, not criticize her imperfections .

9. Sons regret - Men forgive.

This is perhaps the most important difference between a boy and a man. Boys often find it difficult to let go of the past. They don't want to move forward and can't forget what happened in the past. Men, on the other hand, understand that renewing a relationship and forgiving others is more important than holding grudges. Therefore, they quickly apologize and even easily let things go.

10. The son gives up - The man commits.

Men don't want to commit to anything. They refuse to do anything formally because they want to benefit but don't want to " sign a contract ." However, when a man knows what he wants, he will let people know. Men maintain relationships seriously and they will pursue their woman regardless of what others say. They refuse to give up because they know what they want and how important it is to them.

11. Boys play games, men get to know their partners when dating.

The hallmark of a true man is that he allows himself to deeply love a woman. However, the reason a man often suffers heartbreak because of a woman is that she can turn him into a boy or give him adorable little boys. It's a difficult and arduous process, but a woman vulnerable to love can overcome it all. This is what makes a true man always appreciate and cherish the woman in his life, and always respect the weaker sex.

Therefore, when dating, men will seriously get to know their partner about their personal interests, life, and personality. A young man, on the other hand, is still just a boy, only interested in what he likes, such as playing video games throughout the date.
