

The fastest way to open multitasking on iPhone X

Apple also offers a video tutorial on some of the main tasks on the iPhone X, but that doesn't stop tech followers from finding a more effective way.

Apple also offers a video tutorial on some of the main tasks on the iPhone X, but that doesn't stop tech followers from finding a more effective way.

If you have just bought and are holding an iPhone X, you will probably realize that you have to learn a little more familiar with this familiar iPhone friend. Instead of using the physical Home button, the Apple fan hours will have to learn a bunch of other gestures.

See also: Apple again has to teach how to use iPhone, invite you to take a look at the video tutorial of iPhone X

It turned out that the most difficult task was to open App Switcher (multitasking) because it was really time consuming. But there is a much faster and simpler way to open multitasking on iPhone X. This is how.

The official way to open App Switcher is to swipe from bottom to top to the center of the screen. When you see a vibration caused by Taptic Engine, stop and wait for the app to appear on the left. However, this operation is very slow and not intuitive.

See also: How to turn on Virtual Home on iPhone X

This is a faster way. Swipe and simultaneously move your finger to the right corner. Then, the application will appear very quickly. You can swipe and move your finger to the left but it will be a little backward. In any direction, it will open up a multitasking screen very quickly.

Very simple but this way will save time. How many things can you discover on iPhone X? Slowly find out and don't forget to share.

You finished reading the article "The fastest way to open multitasking on iPhone X" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.