The tomb of Jihlava in the town of Jihlava, South Moravia, Czech Republic is one of the most feared tombs in the world. There is always a creepy sound and mysterious phenomena that are difficult to explain.

1. Decoding the mystery behind the "killer" mirror Louis Alvarez 1743 killed 38 people
2. The most famous and mysterious treasures of all time

This mysterious tomb was built by German colonists in the 13th century. The mysteries of the tomb of Jihlava have scared many people over the centuries. According to witnesses, they saw ghosts, organ sounds and other supernatural phenomena at midnight in one of the tunnel corridors.

One theory is that the tomb of Jihlava has since the German colonialists developed their silver mines. In order to avoid war, the villagers in Jihlava built underground shelters. Then they burned down the whole town so that when the invaders came in, they would believe that Jihlava was devastated and left.

The network of underground corridors of Jihlava tombs covers an area of more than 5 hectares, extends 25km, is 25m long, 12m deep compared to the ground and is divided into many levels. The first three floors of catacombs are used to store water and food.

Many people believe that ghosts appearing in the crypt are the dead, buried alive in the collapsed incidents that occurred when building the tomb.

According to legend, in the 15th century, demons raged and harassed the lives of villagers. At that time, in Jihlava there was a young man who was very good at playing the organ. In exchange for peace for the villagers, this young man exchanged the ability to play with the demons, then he was swept into the crypt. From then on, whenever the young man's death came, people heard sad organ sounds coming from the tomb.

In the summer of 1996, archaeological explorers went to work at Jihlava to decipher the mysterious mysteries here. They were amazed to discover a phenomenon that the local people did not know. It was in one of the tomb's underground passageways, the steps glowing in bright red orange, the luminous intensity did not diminish with time.

But the adventurers have not been able to decipher this interesting phenomenon as well as strange phenomena inside the crypt.
