

The MacBook Pro 2012 can be equipped with larger SSDs and batteries

According to some previous rumors, the 2012 MacBook Pro is about the same size as the MacBook Air. The latest information suggests that Apple's new laptop will not only change in size.

According to some previous rumors, the 2012 MacBook Pro is about the same size as the MacBook Air. The latest information suggests that Apple's new laptop will not only change in size.

Inside the more compact design, the new generation MacBook Pro will not have an optical drive but instead it will be a solid-state drive (SSD) used to boot the operating system with a HDD to store data. material. In addition, the battery of the 2012 MacBook Pro is also larger in size.

The image above shows, on the left is the internal configuration of the current MacBook Pro model, while on the right is the simulator image that commentators think of the MacBook Pro 2012. Location of optical drive in the model The current MacBook Pro will be replaced with an SSD and HDD drive in the 2012 MacBook Pro. Meanwhile, the 2012 MacBook Pro battery will occupy all the space below.

With such a large size, the new MacBook Pro's battery will have a capacity of more than 30%, and that also shows that it will be able to have a higher resolution screen and users can use it days to work without worrying about running out of battery.

You finished reading the article "The MacBook Pro 2012 can be equipped with larger SSDs and batteries" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.