

The mysterious UFO that has confused Americans in recent days has found an answer?

The community in the state of New Jersey (USA) has recently raised concerns about the appearance of 'mysterious UFOs'.

The UFOs, which are about the size of an SUV, hovered over the coast. Many residents suspect that the objects could be Iranian drones used for spying. Concerns about UFOs in New Jersey are compounded by the U.S. government's response to the UFOs, which have yet to determine the origin of the objects.

However, some new information suggests that the truth may be much simpler. According to a post on social network X, these unidentified objects may be XP-4 drones developed by the company PteroDynamics. The XP-4 is one of the company's latest technologies designed for the US Navy for logistics and reconnaissance missions.

This is not the first time the US government has kept information about military technology secret. They still keep many details about the secret space plane's missions secret. Therefore, the fact that the XP-4 is a military drone may explain the government's silence on the matter.

Are the UFOs that have recently appeared in New Jersey the US military's secret weapon?

Not everyone accepts this explanation, however. Some still believe that the mysterious UFOs could be spy drones from other countries. However, the similarity between the size and flight path of the XP-4 and past UFO reports makes PteroDynamics' theory more credible.

The US government's refusal to shoot down these drones despite determining their origin was 'unknown' further raises questions about the truth behind the UFO sightings in New Jersey.

You finished reading the article "The mysterious UFO that has confused Americans in recent days has found an answer?" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.