In February 2013, an American teacher, Elayna Nigrelli , who still teaches, fainted at the high school in Missouri City, Texas, where she worked.

When taken to the hospital, the doctors determined that Nigrelli had died from a heart attack and they could not catch the pulse.

Pregnant women are determined to be dead, but the baby in the abdomen is still healthy and safe by the doctors. But strangely, after the baby's birth, the mother's heart beats back. Nigrelli has returned from the dead.

Nearly 1 week after birth, the woman is still in a coma. Doctors diagnosed her with a heart defect and this caused her heart muscle to tighten. It makes it harder to pump blood from the heart.

Nigrelli's children had no abnormal signs but still had to breathe with oxygen and needed special care for two weeks.

Women rest in coffins still give birth

In Canada, a pregnant woman who died from a traffic accident still gave birth after 23 hours of death has caused scientists a headache.

In April 2009, a young, pregnant woman, 7 months and a half, had an accident and crashed into a tree in the city of Toronto. Immediately the victim was taken to the emergency hospital. The doctors tried to save the life of the mother and daughter but failed.

The woman's body was taken to the morgue for about 17 hours before being buried.

About 20 hours after the accident, her naked body was placed in a coffin and covered with a shroud about 20 hours after the accident.

Three hours later, when the staff at the funeral home was lowering the coffin to the dug grave, they heard a newborn baby cry. They decided to open it and were surprised to see a newborn baby. Immediately, the baby was taken to the hospital.

Although she was born prematurely, starved and dehydrated, the girl still recovered after lying in her cage for 4 hours. The time of birth, the girl weighs more than 2.3 kg.
