

The mystery of the strange game appeared on Google.com without anyone knowing the author or time appeared

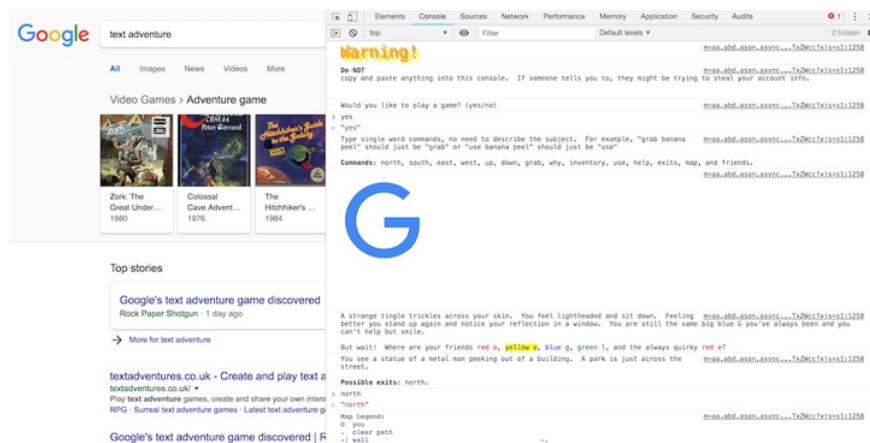

Recently, it was discovered on Google that there is a text-based game, which means playing through interaction with words is hidden quite well.

Playing games right on Google's search website is no stranger to many people, from polishing to catching ghosts. Even users who do not need an Internet connection can still entertain with these games.

But recently, it was discovered on Google that there is a text-based game, meaning playing through interaction with words is quite well hidden. To open it, users have to follow complex operations, not search phrases or Google Doodle.

Note: You must change the Chrome language into English to open this game.

First, go to Google.com in any browser and search for text adventure. Then, if you use Windows, press Ctrl + Shift + I or use Mac, press Cmd + option + I or you can right-click a blank space and select 'Inspect ". In the new window that appears, you Click the 'Console' tab, the game will appear. Instructions for playing games are written in English so you will need a good English to understand and play games.

Reddit forum members said Google's headquarters in Mountain View is the location of the game site in question.

Currently, no one knows how this mysterious game was created, created and when it will last.

See more:

1. The hidden search engines of Google you don't know

2. Here's how to find hidden games on Android phones
3. Interesting things about Google Search you may not know!

You finished reading the article "The mystery of the strange game appeared on Google.com without anyone knowing the author or time appeared" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

---