For nearly a year, the netbook market in Vietnam has become vibrant, most of the names such as Asus, Acer, HP and Dell have chosen this as a strategic market, bringing out new models.

Both the 1000HE and Aspire One are 10 inches of new netbooks using Intel Atom N280 processors, clocking at 1.66 GHz. Asus and Acer also choose Windows XP Home operating system, 160 GB hard drive to keep in.

While the Eee netbook has a 10.2-inch WSVGA LED backlit display, the second Aspire features a 10.1-inch WSVGA, TFT LCD screen. Both have a resolution of 1024 x 600 pixels.

The Acer Aspire One expands the screen bigger than the previous model.

Asus Eee PC 1000HE is impressed by the high capacity 8700 mAh battery, which says it works continuously for 9.5 hours. However, the practice of continuous video playback, the 1000HE continuously running for more than 6 hours must be recharged. This is an impressive number for a netbook.

In addition, Asus' new netbook has a neat keyboard design, MacBook-style with individual flat buttons. 1000HE has a 1.3 Megapixel camera, weighs 1.45 kg.

Meanwhile, the Aspire One has a slightly lighter weight, 1.33 kg, 6-cell battery, built-in Bluetooth connectivity. This is the second Acer netbook after the 9-inch model launched last year and sold very successfully.
