

The new Messenger app is coming soon with 1/4 of the old version, smoother and less expensive

'Heavy and resource consuming is one of the issues that users complain most at Facebook Messenger messaging application.

"Heavy" and resource consumption is one of the issues that users complain the most in the Facebook Messenger messaging application. To change that, Facebook engineers have redeveloped from the beginning of this application to There is a new 'light' version of the older version, which is named "Project LightSpeed" - Messenger.

Recently, Facebook has confirmed that the new version of Messenger is under 30MB, only 1/4 of the current version of 127MB. Optimized, this new version of Messenger only takes 1.3 seconds to boot and consumes less device battery.

However, Facebook has only developed this compact Facebook Messenger application for iOS and will release this year, the specific time has not yet been determined. And on Android apps, it remains the same without applying new changes. For less resources, Android users can download a reduced version of Messenger Lite available on Play Store.

In addition to reducing capacity, the new Messenger messaging app also adds some other interesting features such as the Friends tab, which displays only Story and content shared by friends / relatives, watching videos. together, even and standalone applications for Windows and macOS.

You finished reading the article "The new Messenger app is coming soon with 1/4 of the old version, smoother and less expensive" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.