

The official Apple iCloud Photo Beta Web version is aired

Currently, this Web application is still in beta and only applies to those who are using iOS 8.1 Beta version.

Currently, this Web application is still in beta and only applies to those who are using iOS 8.1 Beta version.

While ifans are immersed in the new generation of iPhones / iPads that have just been launched recently, especially the official iOS 8.1 upgrade that fixes and fixes problems users are experiencing. Yes, Apple quickly launched the iCloud Photo Beta application on the Web.

Currently, this Web application is still in beta and only applies to those who are using iOS 8.1 Beta version. Regarding the interface, iCloud Photo owns the same interface as on iOS devices, allowing browsing images in albums by item such as photos by day or by year.

If you are using devices running iOS 8.1 Beta, you can use the iCloud Photo Beta application by visiting the following link. In terms of operation, users can start editing, updating photo albums as usual on iOS devices.

However, if your device does not run the iOS 8.1 Beta platform, when you visit the website it will notify you that the application cannot be used, and prompt you to upgrade to 8.1 Beta version if you want to use this application. .

You finished reading the article "The official Apple iCloud Photo Beta Web version is aired" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.