

The ornamental fish wrapped around the master's hand asked to caress and play like a cat

The red snapper was fed by Bon Shaw, a resident of Missouri, USA, who kept clinging to the owner of the caressing hand and playing with the usual behavior of domestic dogs or cats that surprised many people.

The red snapper was fed by Bon Shaw, a resident of Missouri, USA, who kept clinging to the owner of the caressing hand and playing with the usual behavior of domestic dogs or cats that surprised many people.

1. Selecting the right time, rays easily cut giant spider meat
2. Difficulty: Does the crab know how to hurt?

The act of taking care of the dog requires the play of dogs and cats is probably no stranger to many people. But this behavior occurs in ornamental fish that are often thought to swim in glass pools and never care about anyone, which is extremely strange.

Bon Shaw adds, the small fish always does everything to attract his attention. It often spreads and excitedly swims from one side to the other to expect the owner to play with it, even if there is food left in the pool, it is okay, just want to play.

Red snapper (red or bloodfish fish) is a ornamental fish of tilapia family, first bred in Taiwan in 1986. When young, snapper was yellow but when grown up into them will gradually turn red. Their average life span ranges from 10 to 15 years, adults can be up to 20 cm long.

You finished reading the article "The ornamental fish wrapped around the master's hand asked to caress and play like a cat" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.