

The precious thing the Chinese father learned after his 2-year-old daughter's trip

Let's read the story of the precious things that the Chinese father learned after traveling with his little daughter!

Stefen Chow - a photographer in Beijing spent a full week of resting next to his two-year-old daughter. Instead of the habit of walking or playing games like many other families, Little Chow's father planned a field trip for his daughter. With the author's permission, TipsMake.com would like to share his story with everyone. Let's read the story of the "precious things" that Chinese father learned after traveling with his little daughter!

© Stefen Chow

Little Chow likes to sit by the window.

Although the daughter is only 2 years old, photographer Stefen Chow decided to spend time with Little Chow learning about new things about the world around . The best way to do this is for your child to see firsthand what is going on, especially this little girl who immediately begins to have a real passion for everything that is happening around her. .

Little Chow's mother is busy with work so she can't join this practical trip with her family, so only her father and 2-year-old daughter join. Meanwhile, some argue that the idea of ??photographer Stefen Chow is vague and risky, but this trip is wonderful. According to photographer, this trip is one of the best things in his life.

© Stefen Chow

Little Chow ate Christmas dinner in Hualien, Taiwan. Like Stefen Chow, this little girl loves to eat watermelon.

During his little adventure, photographer Stefen Chow always follows three principles:

1. Book a room in the hotel for no more than a day to allow spontaneity.
2. Avoid going to big cities and regular travel routes to spend time with your daughter.
3. Let me choose and explore everything in the process of moving.

Father Stefen Chow and his daughter ride a bike along the east coast of Taiwan, spending time exploring animals on the farm, getting into fishing boats, catching trains, climbing hills and storms and having More fun than debate.

© Stefen Chow

Sometimes, Little Chow shows up but this is completely natural.

The wonderful time together, this small adventure helped Stefen learn " extremely important " lessons: an extremely rewarding experience for every parent.

This is what photographer Stefen Chow understands:

1. Young children have sophisticated communication skills

Children are more intelligent and understand what we often think. And they know how to empathize. That's why Stefen has concluded that communicating with children in the " adult " language is much simpler and better. When a father and daughter receive them in the same team and depend on each other, it is necessary to encourage each other to help deal with any situation that occurs.

1. Do not put your child's desires above all

Asians tend to sacrifice everything for the sake of children and Beijing people are no exception. However, the consequences of " excessive " child care will cause children to be spoiled and unable to cure. Stefen Chow said he was unacceptable to see 3 to 5 year olds behave disrespectfully to their parents and grandparents. He doesn't want his daughter to behave like that. By having her daughter experience different living conditions, Stefen teaches her how to adapt to current life in the world.

© Stefen Chow

Little Chow quickly understood why the artists performed on the street and she often "donated" money to them. Out, Little Chow also learned how to climb up and down stairs when holding a lollipop in his hand.

1. Being a parent is an "incredible" experience.

Stefen Chow admits that although he often helps his wife, he never gets the chance to do everything she still does every day. Like other children, his two-year-old daughter often spends a lot of time with her mother. During the time of travel, Stefen has the opportunity to fully experience the feeling of being a father.

1. Appreciate the role of their spouse

Stefen did not understand how mothers could manage those jobs every day, now he even admires them more. He said: " Dear wife and mother in the world, if you want your husbands to understand how it feels, then persuade him to take a long trip with his children. ". Many inexperienced men deal with their problems but if they spend more time with their children, they will understand what our mothers are doing.

© Stefen Chow

Now Little Cho is 3 years old and she has visited 10 countries with both her father and mother.

1. These trips create friendship that lasts a lifetime

Stefen Chow and Little Chow had a great relationship before the small adventure but later, they re-evaluated the "importance of each other" higher. Now, they share all memories and experiences in life to get closer together. Stefen had the opportunity to experience "being both parents" and it was a simple but wonderful thing for him.

Refer to some other articles:

1. Developing thinking and teaching children to learn math with Lego toys
2. Ask your child these 4 questions every day, if you want to understand them better
3. 7 principles that make a "desirable" secondary education in Finland

Having fun!

You finished reading the article "The precious thing the Chinese father learned after his 2-year-old daughter's trip" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.