Recently, Google has just shared a set of spring theme wallpapers on Instagram, the wallpaper has a total of 6 photos with simple, colorful styles and if you are observant, you can see that these are colors. in the Google logo. In particular, the 6 images also have a picture that makes users "immature" in the official name of Android 9.0.

1. Android operating system history through versions

The background image below in addition to owning an eye-catching design also reveals some interesting details. Looking at this image, we see a lot of colorful ice cream sticks and look quite delicious. It reminds us of the Popsicle.

Based on alphabetical Android naming rules, the name of Android 9.0 will begin with the letter P. Google's mobile operating system versions have all been named after food. Therefore, the high possibility of Android P's upcoming name will be Android Popsicle - with P being off of the Popsicle.

A few other images in Google's spring wallpaper set.

However, Popsicle is not the only name that will likely become the official name of the Android version. Remember, Google used to make people curious when launching the image of the Pineapple Pie painted on an Easter egg. Many other foods and drinks are also included in the 'sights' of tech followers such as Pepsi, Parfait, Poptart, Pancake, Pumpkin Pie, Peanut and even Peppermint.

It is known that Google is famous for "teasing" fans with potential names for the next version of Android every year, so it may be just the "drop of hearing" of Google as before. To know the exact name of Android P, we have to wait until Google discovers in August, or at least wait for more information at the Google I / O 2018 event in May.
