

The reason Xiaomi phones show annoying ads

Xiaomi phones annoy users when ads appearing from unknown sources cover the entire screen.

Advertising on Xiaomi phones is set by default in the operating system, so turning it off is quite troublesome, users will have to overcome technological obstacles. That complicated operation is not suitable for the vast majority of Xiaomi users.

There was information leaked that Xiaomi will integrate a switch to turn off system ads right on the operating system interface to support users. But recently, the Chinese phone company has confirmed that this will not happen on the MIUI interface

A Xiaomi representative said that the company does not create a dedicated switch to turn off or turn on the option to display ads, but plans to reduce ads and pre-installed applications (bloatware) when shipped to improve the experience. users on upcoming flagship generations.

Android Authority page believes that "the appearance of a toggle switch that helps turn off/on all ads in the system will be an accessible solution, more beneficial than the current direction." Currently, to turn off ads from the system, users will have to go to Settings, find the application named "MSA", then go to the customizations of each individual application (for example, File Manager, Music, Downloads.) to remove display permissions by disabling this software.

You finished reading the article "The reason Xiaomi phones show annoying ads" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.