

The statue of ancient Kali is unearthed from the riverbed

The Goddess statue is sitting on a rock, the left leg is engraved with the words 'ancient asura' and the right leg is in a squatting position that has been discovered by archaeologists.

1. Artifacts of stores and warehouses for thousands of years are found in Turkey
2. Two Kannada inscriptions were suddenly found

The statue of the Goddess is sitting on a rock, the left leg is engraved with the word 'asura', the right neck and legs in the squatting posture discovered by archaeologists.

Accordingly, a statue of the Goddess named 'Badhra Kali' was unearthed from a river in Iravimangalam village.

Archaeologist V Narayanamoorthy said the beautifully carved stone sculpture is dated to more than 1,000 years old.

When measuring the statue, it can be seen that the statue is 100 cm high and 137 cm wide depicting the goddess sitting on a rock with her left foot engraved with the word "asura" on the right side of her neck and legs.

The goddess held on to a skull and had a crown on her head.

Not only that, the goddess was seen with a hand holding a skull and a crown. The other hand is also holding a 'trishul' (a trident). In addition, a drum, shield and bell are seen on the other hands of the goddess.

Archaeologist said: "The expression of anger on the face of the sculptor is very beautiful and very natural ."

You finished reading the article "The statue of ancient Kali is unearthed from the riverbed" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
