

The types of people who have money should not be connected, no money nor should they ask for a side

Here are some tips on looking at people, leaving friends with you, save it for a while and we'll use it.

Because of money we can become friends, but also because your money can be an enemy.

When people have money, become rich, naturally there are many people who care and approach.

But when the money runs out, becomes poor, then the friend also becomes an indispensable person, everyone shunned, alone gnawed at sadness.

Having good words and words also became beautiful, the people who sat listening to each word said you a good compliment; When you don't have money, your words are of no value, others say, like splashing water in the face with no customers, respect your face, let alone speak up.

There is no reason to have money, no money then it becomes irrational.

So, there are many unexpected things in our lives that we have experienced before we can learn the lessons for our blood.

Living in this world, no matter whether you have money or not, you need to know how to look at people, learn how to look at people, don't make friends casually, nor ask others to help arbitrarily.

5 types you don't assign when you have money

1. When there is money, do not associate with people who are unfaithful and unfamiliar

When you have money, you should not associate with those who despise your own parents. Because the blood of the colon is not treated well, what to say to the stranger.

2. When there is money, do not associate with lazy people

For lazy people who just want to sit and wait for food to eat, where they can benefit, they will come. So, these people will be willing to leave you when you're poor.

3. When having money, do not associate with someone who does not keep the word

In doing the most important business and prestige. If you miss a connection with someone who does not know how to trust, then give up this relationship soon. Because these people will be willing to trample on the word. Suppose he borrows your money, don't expect too much for him to pay on time.

4. When there is money, do not associate with the wrong person

People who are indecent, cunning are really advised to avoid as far as possible, even if you don't have money, let alone have money.

If you have money, these people will definitely not miss the opportunity to use you to achieve their goals, even if they harm you into a state of conspiracy and complicity with them.

5. When having money, do not associate with someone who is too heavy

These are extremely dangerous types of people, because all the time, they are always very sporty, they are always looking forward to you, one heart on your side no matter how hard or fail. But in fact, you will not know what they are thinking in their hearts. Such people will only use you to push yourself up.

5 types of people who do not pray when they run out of money

1. When there is no money, do not rely on the person to ridicule themselves

We humans all have self-esteem, and only when we are poor, will we have to borrow and ask for help from others. However, when it comes to someone's help that is mocked by them, despised, it is best not to pray for anything to do, because they are not at all bothered by your hardship.

2. When money runs out, do not rely on people who do not understand you

In this life, there are many friends so few people can really understand you. So when it is difficult, do not pray to people like that, because this will make them misunderstand about you.

3. When the money runs out, don't ask the rich

People, once they have money, are rich, will have their status and status. But this does not mean that they will understand and understand the difficulty you are having. So, when you fall into the plight, first don't think about asking for the rich but looking for other ways to save yourself and think about asking others.

4. When money runs out, do not pray next to someone who has the same situation as me

For people with difficult circumstances like yourself, you should not ask for help, thanks to them, because thanks to the help of these people, you will only receive rejection from them.

5. When the money runs out, do not ask to save people higher than you

When others stand in a higher position than you, you rely on them, you won't have any respect. People may not need money, but not face.
