

The woman has the 'toxic blood' and the most mysterious medical record in American history

Strange and frightening things happened to the woman whose blood poisoned Gloria Ramirez one evening on February 19, 1994, many scientists suffered. And even now, although medicine has developed, it is still not possible to give a satisfactory explanation for this event.

Strange and frightening things happen to a woman who has "poison blood" Gloria Ramirez one evening on February 19, 1994, causing many scientists a headache. And even now, although medicine has developed, it is still not possible to give a satisfactory explanation for this event.

23 years ago, a 31-year-old female patient named Gloria Ramirez developed cervical cancer, which was taken by medical staff to General Hospital, Riverside, California, USA.

Ms. Gloria Ramirez.

Upon arrival, the patient had strange manifestations such as bradycardia, dyspnea, dreamy mind, many manifestations in elderly patients. After half an hour of emergency, the patient's condition was still not good, the doctors decided to use an electric shock to stimulate the slowing heart rate.

Starting from there, strange and mysterious phenomena began to occur.

Susan Kane is one of the nurses who rescues Gloria on that fateful night, and she is the first to notice a layer of liquid sparkling like oil covering Gloria's body. At the same time, the doctors sent a strange ammonia odor from the victim's blood.

When Susan tried to take the patient's blood sample for testing, she suddenly fainted. After that, Dr. Julie Gorchynski also felt sick and fainted. In the end, resuscitation worker Maureen Welch, who had just rescued the patient, also began to lose control of his limbs and suddenly fainted.

Nurses, doctors of emergency cases lost control and fainted suddenly.

Later, 23 of the 37 health workers on duty that night also began to experience strange symptoms and fainted, five were forced to be hospitalized for treatment.

Although the cause of this strange phenomenon has not been discovered yet, the hospital leadership still decided to isolate the disease and evacuate all medical staff out. Only the best, most experienced doctors stay to cure Gloria Ramirez. Unfortunately, after much effort and effort they still could not save Gloria Ramirez, she died of severe kidney failure at 8:45.

Immediately after Gloria died, the entire hospital was inspected to purge the air, preventing any dangerous substances from spreading.

The California Department of Health sent two doctors to the hospital to investigate the incident. All medical staff and doctors present in that emergency case are given a blood test. The results showed that their blood was completely normal. Meanwhile, the results of the victim's blood tests surprised the doctors, and Gloria Ramirez's blood samples appeared to look like silk paper.

Later, doctors discovered that Gloria used Dimethyl sulfoxide as a substitute for painkillers. That explains the liquid phenomenon that wraps her body and the floating particles (a crystalline form of the drug) in Gloria's blood when doctors conduct treatment. But how Dimethyl sulfoxide can affect so many other people mysteriously, no one can explain.

General Hospital area.

Many hypotheses have been put in place, including two most feasible hypotheses.

The first hypothesis is that all of the emergency cases on February 19 imagined strange signs on the patient's body because they had symptoms of "collective dissociation disorder" (Mass Hysteria).

The second hypothesis is that the mix of drugs used in the emergency room led to a side effect to the whole emergency e-day that day.

However, nurses and doctors have given evidence that completely denies these two theories. Since then, Gloria Ramirez has been called " Toxic Lady " by the medical community - " Poisonous woman " or female poison .

While scientists still cannot explain the cause of the most bizarre phenomenon in this medicine, those who believe in supernatural phenomena believe that Gloria Ramirez has been kidnapped and alienated by aliens. into the body for testing.

1. Mysterious ancient coins print "alien" pictures
2. Building the hair of the mysterious death of nine Soviet scientists
3. Decoding the mystery behind the "killer" mirror Louis Alvarez 1743 killed 38 people

You finished reading the article "The woman has the 'toxic blood' and the most mysterious medical record in American history" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.