What exactly is NSFW content?

'NSFW' is an acronym for 'Not Safe For Work' acronym. This is a common Internet acronym that is often used to describe inappropriate content to see at work, in the presence of colleagues, bosses or even family members when you are at home.

NSFW content is often pornographic or sex-related, but it can also be violent scenes or a controversial issue. People use this acronym by adding it to the email subject line, links that are shared on Facebook, tweets on Twitter or any other type of message, meaning as a warning, that you should not open a link to view content if witnessed by others.

Warning NSFW is what people use to inform others about the type of content they are about to see, to avoid trouble at work or be embarrassed at home when their computer or device shows up at Full screen mode. However, on Reddit, accessing the subreddit / r / nsfw will fill your computer or mobile device's screen with thumbnails of adult content (depending on the list view you choose) .

You must be at least 18 years old

The content posted in the NSFW section of Reddit is completely unsuitable for underage adults. Before you can see the content of this section, Reddit will ask if you are 18 years old. You can click 'Yes' to go to the site or 'No' to leave.

In the United States and many other countries, deliberately distributing adult content to minors is illegal. Therefore, websites that display any type of NSFW content will almost always ask your age, before allowing you to access the site. Reddit is no exception.

Compare NSFW and SFW

The NSFW trend is quite easy to understand. Conversely, if a link or post is labeled as SFW - 'Safe For Work' it means it's safe to see at work and sometimes this phrase is useful if you send content to someone. It may be skeptical about it. The "SFW" label informs them that they do not need to be cautious before opening the content.

Other variations of the NSFW phrase include:

1. PNSFW - Probably Not Safe For Work
2. LSFW - Less Safe For Work
3. TSWF - Technically Safe For Work
3. PNFO - Probably Not For the Office

Believe it or not, Drew Curtis (Fark.com founder) tried to register the trademark for 'NSFW' in 2007 but was refused.
