

This way you can remove all deposits from the sink and faucet

3 simple steps with vinegar water will help you to remove any stains on the sink, faucet or bathtub. The work of cleaning house on Tet holiday is so simple.

In the composition of living water currently used by families that contain a large amount of minerals that play a role, after a period of use, sinks, baths or faucets become soiled. If kept for a long time, they will stick to utensils and are very fast, not to mention that the bacteria will easily penetrate the body whenever you wash your hands, wash dishes, take baths . However, With the following method, you can rest assured that these obnoxious stains will be thoroughly removed.

Video tutorial to clean the residue on the sink with vinegar

Specific steps are as follows:

Step 1: Dry the surface of the sink, bathtub or faucet - where it has been contaminated.

Step 2: Dip the wipes in a bowl of vinegar, then cover the surface of the area with the residue and leave it for about 1 hour.

Step 3: After an hour has passed, you only need to gently wipe the surface and the magic will appear. Everything is clean and looks new.

Tet is coming up and cleaning up the house is the "all, good, and random" task of millions of families. If you have trouble handling the deposits in such areas, then you can apply this tip. In addition, you can also use vinegar to clean the surface of porcelain utensils and the effect is also excellent.

Video tutorial on how to use vinegar water to clean the bathroom

Good luck.

You finished reading the article "This way you can remove all deposits from the sink and faucet" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
