

Tips to play Earn to Die 2 gamers need to know

Earn to Die 2 is a charismatic zombie killing racing game, following the success of the first part released in 2012.

In this Earn to Die 2 game, players continue to step into the familiar desert setting and explore cities attacked by zombies.

Gamers will have to travel through the city, to the checkpoints and to the finish line to win at every game level. To make this task easier, let's learn the tips to know when playing Earn to Die 2.

Keep your finger on the boost button all the time

Earn to Die 2 puts the player in a vehicle equipped to deal with an onslaught of zombies. Everyone needs to make sure they keep moving by constantly holding their finger on the acceleration button. Keep moving all the time so as not to risk any game over.

However, for the rotary button, people do not need to press it continuously because it can cause the car to overturn and malfunction.

No need to accelerate when going downhill

When the car goes downhill, the player does not need the acceleration button, because the game's mechanism will automatically push the vehicle to go faster without any impact.

Use boost at the right time

The cases where boost should be used, promoting acceleration are when people are driving uphill, or any bumpy, difficult area. This is the only time to use help in this game.

Focus on upgrading the engine and transmission

The two upgrades that players should put all their efforts into are the Engine (engine) and Transmission (transmission) stats. Using money in the game to increase the engine means that the speed will be improved. Meanwhile, the upgraded powertrain will give gamers a better chance at completing stages faster.

Upgrade other tools

Make sure you buy and equip the gun when you accumulate some money in the game. Although the amount of ammo is limited, players still benefit from shooting down zombies without too much effort.

Focus on the gun after having completed some upgrades to the selected vehicle's engine and transmission. Then, the next upgrade focus the player needs to focus on is the vehicle's fuel tank. The improved fuel tank means the car will be able to go much further.
