Certainly many people have encountered this awkward situation even more times in their lives: two glass cups stacked up and stuck always unable to budge. In that situation, many people had no other way but to accept "sacrifice" to break one to save the other but also failed to break both.

With the tips below, you absolutely do not have to worry, "suffering" when you have to smash and throw away your lovely, lovely glass glasses.

When two glasses of glass are stuck, you put cold ice in the cup above, then continue to put them in a bowl / basin of hot water. After that, gently rotate the 2 cups in opposite directions so that you can "preserve" them intact.

The cold stone makes the cup above shrink a little, while the hot water makes the lower cup expand, making it easier to remove the two attached cups.
