If you want to try living in a potato, now there is a place for you to fulfill your dream. Come with the giant 'potato' weighing up to 6 tons, located on a vast field, in South Boise, Idaho state, USA.

In fact, this 6 ton 'potato' is not a real potato, but steel, plaster and concrete.

On the outside, this huge 'potato' looks grotesque, but the interior of the interior surprisingly surprised everyone. Inside this 'potato' includes queen-size bed (203 x 152cm) for 2 people, small bathroom, kitchen, fireplace, air conditioner, two single sofas and several plant pots.

This 'potato tuber' measures 8.5 x 3.6 x 3.5 meters, originally created by Idaho Potato Commission to promote this valuable vegetable. After 6 years around the United States on a truck, this potato was turned into a Big Idaho Potato Hotel by the real estate owner Kristie Wolfe.

To experience a night of sleeping in a giant potato in the field, you will have to pay 200USD plus 31 USD service fee and 16 USD tax, total amount up to 247 USD (5.7 million VND).
