

Tony Stewart's All-American Racing is now available on Xbox One

Monster Games has collaborated with Tony Stewart, a three-time NASCAR racing champion, to launch a new racing game called Tony Stewart's All American Racing and now the game has been released on Xbox One.

Former NASCAR champion Tony Stewart is back with another racing series and this time it's Tony Stewart's All-American Racing. The latest racing game from Monster Games in partnership with Tony Stewart is officially available on Xbox One.

So that experienced players have a great time with the game and step into the challenge right away, while casual, less experienced players don't feel intimidated or frustrated by something so difficult for controls, the developer has refined the realistic physics in its latest title. Specifically, the way the cars slide through turns and curves. Sure, different settings will solve that problem, but this time players will feel more in the process of controlling their car to conquer curves and turns.

In addition, compared to the previous Tony Stewart's Sprint Car Racing game, Tony Stewart's All-American Racing will add a number of new cars including Big Block Modifieds, Street Stocks and US Legend Cars. Each car has a different style and personality on the track, bringing a unique feeling of control, no two cars are the same. Differences in horsepower, significant weight changes, and just the style in which you drive them compete with your competition. The developers spent a lot of time balancing the AI and making sure that you can feel their "personality" as well.

Another big change is how Career Mode works. Previously, in racing games from Monster Games, you had a more "linear" experience, where you climbed each step of your career ladder. But, with Tony Stewart's All-American Racing, that no longer applies. You can choose how you want to compete and what you want to do from the start. You can even hire drivers to race for you, and new management functionality makes managing your spending more efficient by hiring department managers and marketing directors. There's even the possibility of adding new tracks or tournaments to your career-building journey.

Tony Stewart's All-American Racing is built on new physics, including 26 new tracks and race cars, an improved career mode, 25-player online racing capabilities and a championship mode upgraded, all giving players the opportunity to build their own racing empire. The game is out now on Xbox One for $29.99.
