1. Ask Kimberley

Dr. Kimberly Moffit's YouTube channel provides a refreshing antidote to so many dating gurus who seem to take everything a bit too seriously. Releasing three or four videos every month, she has accumulated around half a million followers, her fans drawn to her blend of informative encouragement and fun. She has also appeared on numerous TV outlets, her friendly approach making her particularly appealing to younger singles.

2. Hayley Quinn

A self-styled international dating coach, Haley Quinn presents herself as a more cerebral alternative to the instant gratification approach when it comes to matchmaking. Instead of basing a relationship on swiping left or right, she invites her audience to take her advice on approaching prospective partners via engaging conversation, following simple, ethical steps. Also known for her informative TED talks, she releases about one new video per week on her YouTube channel.

3. Matthew Hussey

Essex-born Hussey is often seen as the world's foremost YouTuber when it comes to dating advice for women. Based in the USA since 2010, as well as running a YouTube channel commanding over a million subscribers, he is a New York Times bestselling author for his coaching manual, 'Get The Guy: Learn Secrets of the Male Mind to Find the Man You Want and the Love You Deserve.' He has drawn particular attention for his one-on-one sessions, for which he charges $10,000 per hour. Despite (or perhaps because of) this price tag, fans include Tyra Banks and Eva Longoria.

4. Kezia Noble

Noble is known as one of the leading dating coaches for men looking to meet women. She is renowned for her no-nonsense approach, offering what could be described as 'tough love' advice. She revels in having attained the nickname 'the bitch with a heart,' but despite what might be construed as a blunt approach, she has gathered a loyal following, her YouTube channel boasting 60 million views. Releasing one eagerly-anticipated video per month, subscribers tune into her abrasive methods from all over the globe.

5. Based Zeus

Releasing two videos per week, Based Zeus is a YouTuber renowned for bold advice on a range of dating topics. This channel is popular with male subscribers, drawn to the 'in your face' approach adopted by the so-called 'Based Lord of the Sky.' Amongst the dating advice and tips offered in the regular videos are, 'three text conversations that got me laid,' and 'four steps to make any girl like you instantly.' The very nature of YouTube is that videos are often short and sharp, combining entertainment with information, but in a medium where viewers can get itchy fingers if they aren't enticed immediately, and will quickly move on to the next video. Based Zeus titles grab attention from the get-go.
