

Toshiba introduces a Core i3 touchscreen laptop

U500-1EX features a 13.3-inch multi-touch screen with a resolution of 1,280 x 800 pixels.

U500-1EX features a 13.3-inch multi-touch screen with a resolution of 1,280 x 800 pixels.

Toshiba's new product has a 13.3-inch multi-touch screen with a resolution of 1,280 x 800 pixels. U500-1EX is equipped with an Intel Core i3-330 2.13 GHz processor with 3MB cache, 4GB DDR3 memory and a traditional hard drive of 320GB.

In addition, this model also has common connections such as Wi-Fi standard n, Bluetooth 2.1, LAN and connection ports like HDMI, 2 USB ports, 1 eSATA / USB combo port (with these USB ports, users can charge the device even when the laptop is turned off), 5 types of memory card reader, DVD read / write optical drive and webcam with face detection feature.

U500-1EX has a weight of 2.15 with the battery included and is sold for about $ 1,100.

Toshiba U500-1EX has a multi-touch screen. Photo: Laptopsing .

You finished reading the article "Toshiba introduces a Core i3 touchscreen laptop" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
