Satellite NB15t has an 11-inch touch screen, Celeron chip, 500 GB hard drive, 4 GB RAM, and sells for only $ 380.

Along with Asus, Toshiba is trying to revive the seemingly extinct netbook line with the cheap Satellite NB15t. The Satellite NB15t has an 11-inch screen and has a soft price that we often see on previous netbooks: $ 380.

However, Satellite NB15t inherits the strong side that Windows 8 operating system brings. The device is equipped with a touch screen that allows users to experience the new interface on Windows 8 in the most perfect way. Toshiba's low-cost laptop is also equipped with 802.11ac WiFi.

It is equipped with 2-core Celeron N2810 chip, 500 GB hard drive, 4 GB RAM. In terms of weight, although only 11 inches in size, Toshiba's laptop weighs 1.49 kg. Other connections include Ethernet, 2 USB 3.0 ports, HDMI and VGA. It also has stereo speakers with DTS audio audio technology.

Unfortunately, Toshiba only sold this cheap laptop in November.
