

Toshiba released the Tecra Z40 and Tecra A50

Computer maker Toshiba recently officially launched two new compact business laptops of the company including the Tecra Z40 and Tecra A50 models.

Computer maker Toshiba recently officially launched two new compact business laptops of the company including the Tecra Z40 and Tecra A50 models.

Toshiba Tecra Z40

Accordingly, the first model is the Tecra Z40, which will have a 14-inch screen, HD resolution or HD + combined with a magnesium alloy cover for luxurious beauty while studying and working.

The optional configuration of the Tecra Z40 includes a processor from Core i3 to Core i7, a maximum of 16 GB of RAM, an internal memory or a 500 GB HDD or a 512 GB SSD. The device weighs 1.45 kg, 20.32 mm thick and supports users with a backlit keyboard and version option with a useful spill-resistant keyboard.

Toshiba Tecra A50

Meanwhile, the Tecra A50 model , the machine has a much larger size and parameters than the same brother.

It is equipped with a large touch screen up to 15.6 inches, HD resolution, optional processors like the Tecra Z40 and uses the latest Intel HD 4600 graphics core today.

Regarding storage capacity, Tecra A50 is favored by Toshiba in addition to 16 GB RAM, 512 GB SSD memory, the machine also has the option of HDD up to 1 TB. In addition, the device will also have built-in optical drive for users.

According to Toshiba, both models also support memory card reader, Wi-Fi connection, Bluetooth, Webcam, Ethernet port . when marketed with starting price of USD 799 equivalent to 17 million. copper.

You finished reading the article "Toshiba released the Tecra Z40 and Tecra A50" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.