

Tricks account for WhatsApp, Viber account by Siri

To hijack WhatsApp accounts (or Viber and other message authentication services), the attacker only needs to know the phone number of the user. This is Siri's loophole: if you have fully installed personal information (phone numbers, email ...) in the My Information section of Siri's settings, crooks only need to activate the support application. This virtual logic and ask questions What is my number (What is my number?)

Allowing Siri to activate right from the lock screen can cause you to lose a lot of important information in case of phone theft.

If you have not enabled the Siri access feature from the lock screen, you should do this as soon as possible. Otherwise, in case of losing iPhone ( or letting others access to your iPhone ), you may lose all WhatsApp account, Viber and all services that authenticate identity via number. other phone.

Note that this is not a technical error for Siri, iPhone and WhatsApp or any other application, and maybe a phone thief will not have the need to hijack your WhatsApp account. However, the trick of identity theft in this case is very simple.

To hijack WhatsApp accounts ( or Viber and other message authentication services ), the attacker only needs to know the phone number of the user. This is Siri's loophole: if you have fully installed personal information ( phone number, email . ) in the "My information " section in Siri's settings, the crook only needs to activate the application. Use this virtual assistant and ask the question " What is my number " ( " What is my number ? " ).

Next, the attacker just needs to log into WhatsApp on their phone. WhatsApp will send the message containing the authentication code to the entered phone number. At this point, the hacker can read the message containing the authentication code sent from WhatsApp on the notification of the lock screen, or simply . remove the SIM of the victim inserted in another phone. Once you have verified the identity using this code, the crook can impersonate the victim on WhatsApp and send messages with fraudulent content ( such as a loan, a transfer request . ) or a trick. Island to steal sensitive information.

Steps to perform fake hacking WhatsApp identity

What makes this discovery somewhat ironic is that Siri is provided with the feature to read the phone number of the current machine to . help the person who picked up the phone can contact the victim. To help ensure maximum security for your digital identity and avoid this ridiculous hack, turn off Siri access as well as the Control Center / Control Center and even the text on the screen. lock pattern.
