With CDMA wireless card (available in Vietnam), you can not only turn your laptop into a mobile phone but also access the internet anywhere (of course in the service area of ??the provider) . .

With RUIIM support (similar to sim, in GSM mobile system), you can transfer information (stored on the RUIIM chip) from one device to another.

The product allows users to access CDMA networks, including high-speed CDMA 2000 1X networks, and IS-95A. CDMA 1x also has a call function like a regular mobile phone, users just need to plug in a headset to be able to "Hello" without fear of running out of battery.
