

Use Outlook Express to send / receive Yahoo mail

Many people have been using Yahoo Mail as a primary email for sending mail. However, being constantly logged into Yahoo Mail to check mail is annoying and does not guarantee regularity. There is a way to send / receive mail with Yahoo Mail through the Outlook Express email client support program.

Many people have been using Yahoo Mail as a primary email for sending mail. However, being constantly logged into Yahoo Mail to check mail is annoying and does not guarantee regularity. There is a way to send / receive mail with Yahoo Mail through the Outlook Express email client support program.

Depending on the country where Yahoo Mail supports POP3 or not. For convenience, you should use Yahoo mail service with the domain name of Vietnam ( yahoo.com.vn ), how to declare as follows:

- You visit the website <http://vn.yahoo.com> to register a Yahoo mailbox with Vietnamese interface, your email address will have the tail of @ yahoo.com.vn (because @ yahoo.com does not support POP3). Then, access your inbox> select ' Options ' in the upper right corner> select ' POP access and forwarding '> select ' Access via Web and POP "> in the section' When downloading new messages ', you can choose to add' I don't want to receive messages that SpamGuard thinks is spam 'or' I want to receive all messages, including messages SpamGuard thinks of as spam '> select' Save back '.

- Run Outlook Express, open the Tools menu> select Accounts > select Mail tab> click Add and select Mail to create a new account, in which you declare Account name is your Yahoo mail address (no need to have the @ yahoo.com extension) .vn ), Incomming mail is pop.mail.yahoo.com and Outgoing mail is smtp.mail.yahoo.com . Then, select the newly created Yahoo account in Account > select Properties > select Servers tab> select My server requires authentication in the Outgoing mail server section > click OK to finish.

You finished reading the article "Use Outlook Express to send / receive Yahoo mail" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

