

Users can add group chats right in the middle of a call on Facebook Messenger

In the latest Facebook Messenger update on Android and iOS, users can enable multiple users to join voice chat or video call.

In the latest Facebook Messenger update on Android and iOS, users can enable multiple users to join voice chat or video call.

Previously, to add a caller, the user group had to end the current call and start making a new group call by creating a new chat group or looking in the previous conversation inbox to make it show call.

To save time and help users make group calls in Facebook Messenger more convenient, this feature has been improved by the icon that allows more participants in the conversation process. After disconnecting the call, new members will be automatically added to the chat group with the user's account.

See more:

1. How to call, video Facebook Messenger on mobile, tablet
2. How to know someone blocked you on Facebook Messenger?
3. Only with Messenger tips, you'll know where the phone owner is
4. How to remove the code as a video format on Facebook Messenger
5. How to send music, MP3 songs through Messenger to listen

You finished reading the article "Users can add group chats right in the middle of a call on Facebook Messenger" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.

