

Users only need less than 30 minutes to install Windows 10 Spring Creators Update

As confirmed by Dona Sarkar - The head of Windows Insider Program, Windows has been improved to reduce the time to install Windows 10 Spring Creators Update to less than 30 minutes.

Normally, users will have to wait about 1-2 hours for Windows to complete the update. But with Windows 10 Spring Creators Update version, Microsoft has been trying very hard to speed up the Windows installation process on the device during the update process. And according to the confirmation of Dona Sarkar - The head of the Windows Insider Program, Windows has been improved to reduce the time to install Windows 10 Spring Creators Update to less than 30 minutes.

According to Joseph Conway - Senior manager of Windows Fundamentals team, to do this, the development team transferred a part of the work done at the offline stage before, then put it into the online phase to help Reduce average time to install offline version. Finally, after many improvements, the installation time was reduced to 30 minutes, 60% lower than the Windows 10 Creators Update update.

This is a major improvement over time compared to older Windows versions.

Currently, these changes have only been applied to Insider users. As expected, Microsoft will bring these changes to individual users when installing the next version of Windows 10 (Windows 10 Spring Creators).
