After a quiet period of time, Vaio brand has just suddenly launched two new laptop series: Vaio Fit and Vaio Pro.

Vaio laptop brand has just introduced two new product lines

According to CNET, Vaio Fit is equipped with 15.5-inch touch screen, using configuration including Intel Core i7 processor, 8 GB RAM, Intel HD Graphics 4400 graphics card, HDD 500 GB hard drive .

Meanwhile, Vaio Pro has two different touch screen sizes including 11.6-inch version and 13.3-inch version. In terms of configuration, it is equipped with Intel Core i7 processor, 8 GB RAM, Intel HD Graphics 4400 graphics card, SSD 512 GB hard drive .

When marketed, both Vaio Fit and Vaio Pro models are preinstalled with the latest Windows 8.1 Pro operating system from Microsoft.

It is known that in February 2014, Sony resold the computer business division (branded Vaio) to Japan 's Japan Industrial Partners fund. The two Vaio Fit and Vaio Pro models are the first commercial products developed by the fund.

Currently, these two models are only sold in Japan.
