According to a warning from the ESET information security firm, running a series of zodiac applications or speeding up machines with malicious code is being installed by tens of thousands of people and this number is still increasing.

ESET adds, these applications only appear on Android Play Store, Google has detected and removed them. However, users who have installed them on their smartphones are forced to manually remove them to avoid risks.

Malware is sneaked into zodiac information viewing applications, speeds up device configuration, cleans up memory and capacity. After the user installs these applications, malicious code will interfere with the smartphone system then try to overcome the ways of locking the computer, collecting personal data and installing other malicious code.

Not only stealing personal information (social network accounts, banks .), this malicious code also deceives users. When opening the application for the first time, a fake message will appear informing that the application has been automatically removed due to an incompatibility error. But the software will actually hide automatically and try to break the security layer.
