What is a women's layered hairstyle?

Layered hair, or leaf-shaped hair, is a hairstyle where strands of hair are cut in staggered layers, overlapping and overlapping to create volume at the roots. The ends are either sharply tapered or slightly rounded, giving women a dynamic and modern look.

Layered haircuts are always a popular choice among women because of their youthful and energetic look.

Advantage

1. Helping your hair look thicker and fuller, it's considered a lifesaver for girls with thin hair.
2. Suitable for everyone, from those with a gentle personality to those with a bold style, and complements a wide range of fashion tastes.
3. It helps to balance facial proportions, concealing imperfections and sharp angles.
4. Layered hairstyles are easy to style and can be adapted in many ways.

Disadvantages

1. Those with short and square faces are not suited to layered hairstyles because they will make your face look even shorter and wider.
2. Layered hairstyles require careful maintenance; otherwise, the hair is prone to frizz, split ends, and dryness. Additionally, the ends of the hair will not curl inwards but will instead curl outwards, which looks unattractive.
