History of MOBA game formation

MOBA games have a long history of development and improvement. The following are important milestones in the process of building, improving and gradually becoming popular of this game series.

The beginning of MOBA games

The MOBA game concept originates from the Aeon of Strife mod of the game StarCraft. Unlike the official version, in this mod, the player will control the character to destroy the main house automatically built and controlled by the computer. This is also the money to create the extremely popular MOBA game series at present.

Improvements and developments

After the release of WarCraft III with the ability to customize levels, the legendary mod Aeon of Strife with the new game mode Defense of the Ancients (DotA) was created by player Eul. The birth of new recruits in the MOBA genre

In 2005, a member of Dota Allstar - Guinsoo left this organization and joined Riot Games, the developer of the later game League of Legends. In 2009, the game League of Legends - League of Legend (LOL) officially launched to gamers around the world and was immediately received extremely warmly.

The reason why the game LOL is loved by many people is because of its eye-catching, lively graphics and new, rich gameplay. In particular, this game is completely free, so it attracted a huge number of players at that time.

In 2010, following the birth of League of Legends, a MOBA game called Heroes of Newerth (HoN) was released. HoN is considered to have the same graphics and gameplay mechanics as DotA but in a paid form. It is this point that makes the game not receive too much attention from gamers. After that, HoN switched to a free format, but that was also the time when Dota 2 was born.

Dota 2 launched with quality upgrades

Dota 2 officially launched in 2013 on the Steam platform under the development of Valve. This version retains the core foundation of DotA but is greatly improved and upgraded in terms of graphics and gameplay.

From the above basic information, it can be seen that the most important thing in the MOBA game series is the cohesion and coordination of team members. Each member will take on a different role to fight and defeat the enemy to bring final victory.

What is attractive about MOBA games?

A characteristic of the MOBA game series is the rich number of generals. However, they will be in the following main classes:

1. Gunners: These are generals who take on the main offensive position in the team. Gunners often have the ability to attack from afar with huge amounts of physical damage. However, they often have the disadvantage of having low health, consuming a lot of energy (mana), and poor resistance and mobility.
2. Gladiators: Are champions who travel solo and have good solo abilities. The outstanding points of Gladiator class champions are their abundant health and mana, good resistance, and the ability to rush in and attract enemies. However, Gladiators usually do not have too much damage.

3. Mages: Are generals who specialize in magical attacks. Mages are quite similar to Gunners in that they have a lot of damage but have low health, mana, resistance and mobility.
4. Assassins: These are generals who specialize in sudden attacks, one combo - one kill. The advantage of an Assassin is high mobility, being able to quickly attack with huge amounts of damage. However, the biggest disadvantage of this champion class is the low amount of health and resistance. Assassins are often chosen in the Jungler position.
5. Support: These are generals who specialize in accompanying the Gunner to support and protect the Gunner from enemy attacks. There are many forms of Support that can be mentioned such as Protection Support (increases armor, has moves to protect the Gunner), Support to initiate combat (has many control moves, stuns, and binds), Pure Support (increased health, increased damage, increased armor),. Normally, Support champions will have a lot of health, armor, good defense but limited flexibility and low damage.

The above advantages are only relative characteristics of each class of statues. In fact, each general will possess many moves belonging to other classes and can change position or switch paths when necessary.

For example : The Mage can be repositioned to the bottom lane and go with the Support instead of the Gunner because of the similarities of these two classes. Or the Gladiator champion can be used for the Support position if it suits the squad and strategy the team has proposed.

Besides the flexibility between champions, players can also create many new strategies with unique equipment and combos. If that tactic is effective, it will be applied by other gamers and become the Meta (Most Efficient Tactics Available) of the game at that time.
