In the opinion of many people, men must have a lot of masculine new hairs, a man. So, is the country most 'hairy' men and Vietnamese men in that group? Let's try to find out.

According to the research results of Stewart W. Hindley and Albert Damon of the Department of Anthropology at Stanford University, on the 'old' continents men tend to be more hairy than other continents.

Europe, in particular countries such as Spain, France, Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Egypt . is the highest density of male "hairy" men in the world, accounting for over 70%.

In the United States, Mexico, Australia, etc., men in these countries have 50 - 59% of 'good hair'.

The density of hair on the male body in Asia is only 6 - 24%, which is 'smooth'.

The East Asia region, including Vietnam, has strong "fur" index on the body below 5%.

According to experts, the production of male sex hormone testosterone in the body and the use of testosterone are the main causes of this difference.

More dense hair is caused by more testosterone production, stronger male properties and vice versa.

Besides the main factor is testosterone, there are many other factors especially the genetic factors that support, affect the hair density.
