1. Maintenance and cleaning of vehicles monthly

Every month we should take the time to maintain our cars so that the cars are less damaged and provide safety for yourself and everyone.

When servicing, we just need to check to the rear parts of the car such as headlights, taillights, brake lights, turn signal lights should be checked to always operate the most stable.

If these parts are not tested, unfortunately it can be damaged and you are not aware that it will be dangerous when you join the traffic on the highway or away from the residential area.

In addition, you should also pay attention to automotive tire problems such as tire pressure. This is extremely important because it will ensure your safety as well as make sure the car does not explode when moving, losing control when the car goes at high speed. Always pump tires according to the manufacturer's standard pressure.

Besides, glass washing water is also a part that needs to be taken care of regularly to help you get the best view when driving.

2. Maintenance when the car runs 5,000 km

Many people have the habit of giving car maintenance when the new car runs 5,000km, but in fact, this is not really necessary but now we only need to replace the motor oil for the car to the engine of the car Can operate in the smoothest and most stable way. This is a necessary recommendation of any manufacturer.

In addition to changing oil, we also need to pay attention to some phenomena of tires to see if there is any situation such as cracking, if not overcome, this is one of the dangers when taking traffic.

In addition, drivers should check the engine oil level inside the driver's radiator gearbox, which is extremely important but is often neglected by drivers. Regular checking of engine oil helps us to avoid the dirty and weak steering of the steering wheel, we can hardly control the steering wheel.
