

Why is Facebook called ... Facebook but not any other name?

Facebook, the world's largest social network is so familiar to us, but who can answer the question: Where did Facebook's name come from?

Facebook, the world's largest social network is so familiar to us, but who can answer the question: Where did Facebook's name come from?

Let's find out about the origin of the name Facebook to get the answer!

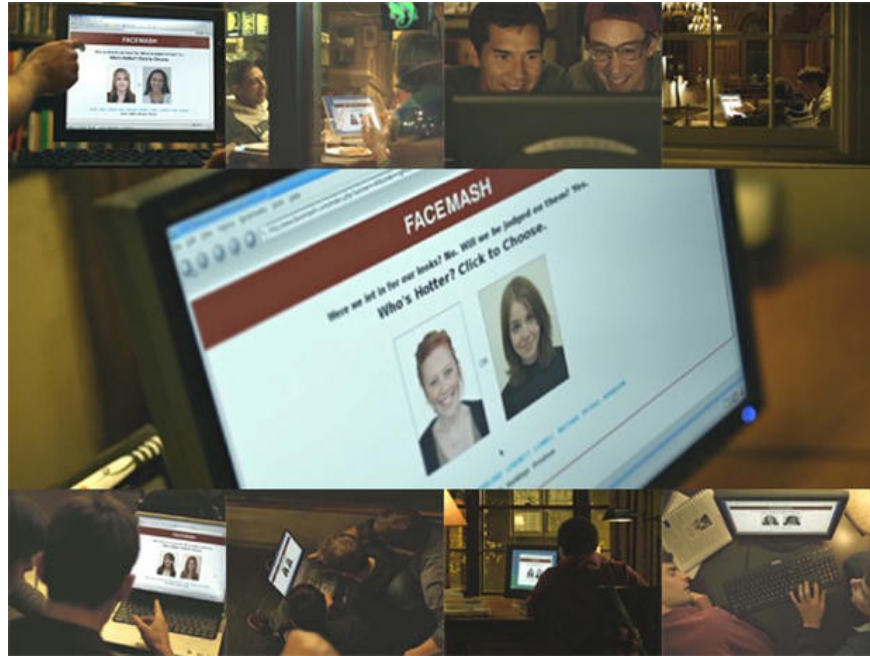

Facebook = Face + Book

Facebook is joined from 2 from "face" and "book" (book). So we can simply understand its meaning as "photo book", which is used to refer to albums that keep photos of members in a collective, just like the yearbook of the school year after End of student / student life.

Mark Zuckerberg created a simple version of the online "photo book" called Coursematch while still a boy and his only passion was computers and lines of code. In fact, Coursematch is a website that contains photos and information of each person in each class attending the school. But gradually this website has been forgotten.

When "kicked" by his girlfriend Erica Albright, Mark set up a website called FaceMash, gathering photos of all girls in the dormitory. Each time there will be 2 random images appear (including photos of the ex-girlfriend) so people choose who is more attractive. This is a retaliatory way no one can think of.

Mark Zuckerberg's life story is reproduced in the movie "The Social Network".

The way to the name "Facebook" peak

In just a few hours, traffic to FaceMash has reached a record, but then this site was taken down by Harvard. It was from here that Mark gradually formed an idea of ??a more advanced "picture book" form.

Not long after, Mark released a simple version of a social network called TheFacebook to connect students. TheFacebook has attracted 1,200 members only after the first 24 hours.

According to Mark Zuckerberg, he took the name "TheFacebook" and not "Facebook" from the beginning because he wanted to create a standout to express the nature of the website he made because "The" is a mere factual article. in English. In addition, adding the 'The' article to avoid being misunderstood as a traditional "photo book - Facebook".

When "TheFacebook" reached the milestone of 1 million users, Mark changed the name "TheFacebook" to "Facebook" for simplicity and easy to remember as suggested by Sean Parker - invited by Mark to be the first CEO. They spent $ 200,000 to change the domain name "thefacebook.com" to "facebook.com".

There was also an opinion that, because Mark Zuckerberg had not had enough money to buy "facebook.com" before, he had just named TheFacebook, all of them intentions.

See more:

1. Few people know Facebook icons, special characters Facebook, emoji on Facebook 2018
2. Even Facebook employees can look at personal information whether you want it or not
3. Facebook is about to have dating features, providing more long-term networking opportunities than single people

You finished reading the article "Why is Facebook called ... Facebook but not any other name?" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.