Civilizations & RPG Commanders:

As you've probably guessed, civilizations are the key element of this game. Be careful when selecting your first civilization as it's going to determine your playstyle. There's a great number of civilizations to choose from, and more and more civilizations are getting added with each update. Each civilization has its own architecture, unique units, and special advantages.

Furthermore, each civilization comes with a unique historical figure. From Julius Caesar and Aleksandar to Joan of Arc and Richard. Commanders are improved by defeating barbarians and fighting in battles, while their abilities can be upgraded using talent trees. Like in any game, the power of commanders is different. Some commanders are strong for defending and rallying and some commanders are strong for field fighting. You can always check RiseOfKingdomsGuides Tier List to see which best commanders for rallying, defending objectives, fighting against barbarians etc.

Battles

Rise of Kingdoms brings true RTS gameplay. Every single encounter happens in real-time while anyone is allowed to participate in battles at all times. Battling experience is extremely intuitive and allows you to literally respond to anything in real-time. Also, this game includes unrestricted troop movement. Meaning that you can issue orders on troops at any time.

Unrestricted troop movement gave developers the ability to create events like Ark of Osiris, Kingdoms vs kingdom, and many more PVP events.

World-Map & Exploration:

Everything takes place on a large world map that is populated by players and NPCs. Every single pixel of the map is utilized and accessible, meaning that there are no isolated parts of the world. One thing worth mentioning is the 'infinite zoom' that enables a zoomed-in view of cities and outposts or a complete zoomed-out view of the world.

In order to explore the world, you need to send out scouts. Scouts play a great role in uncovering resources, treasures, barbarians, enemies, and everything else you need to prepare your civilizations for battles.

Alliance System

Connect with your friends and peers as you try to help each other. Every alliance member is able to chat with each other, take an officer role, coordinate the troops on the map etc. Just like with every world like alliance, your main goal is to expand the alliance territory as you try to gain more resources and strengthen your position. Working together as a group as you try to conquer the kingdom. Every time someone from the alliance buys a game bundle, the whole alliance will receive a special chest that can contain gems, VIP points, Speedups, etc.
