

Will Microsoft merge Windows RT and Windows Phone?

In the near future, it is possible that Microsoft will merge two Windows RT and Windows Phone platforms into a single platform when information is available.

In the near future, it is possible that Microsoft will merge two Windows RT and Windows Phone platforms into a single platform when information is available.

According to the Winbeta site quoted by a WZOR source - who is known as a supplier of a lot of leaked information from Microsoft, Microsoft will merge Windows RT and Windows Phone in the near future as well as reveal about appearance of Windows 9 and version 10.

For Windows Phone and Windows RT, WZOR said Microsoft now plans to merge the two operating systems together. Although no more disclosure, experts still consider this is the ultimate goal Microsoft for both Windows Phone and Windows RT platforms.

Besides, the source also said about the next Windows versions of Microsoft Windows 9 and 10. Windows 9 will be similar to what we currently have while Windows 10 will have many new things to bring to user

About Windows 9, this will be a 'copy' like the desktop version we are using. Besides, Microsoft is planning to bring the old Aero interface back on this platform, but it will be completely different from what we know, and also revealed that Windows 9 will appear " sooner than expected. " "

About Windows 10 will be a different platform. Windows 10 will be completely clouded by Microsoft and this internal idea of ??Windows 10 will appear on September 1 .

Finally, WZOR said, the accuracy of the information will be known more in early September .

You finished reading the article "Will Microsoft merge Windows RT and Windows Phone?" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.
