

Will the 'Huawei Search' tool replace Google Search?

Huawei is currently working on a new search engine Huawei Search to replace Google Search alongside its own previously released applications for Huawei devices.

Due to its inability to bring Google apps to its devices from the 2019 ban, Huawei has researched and released a number of alternative applications such as App Gallery instead of Google Play, Huawei Mobile Services instead of Google Play. Services. And recently Huawei added that it is working on a new search engine to replace traditional Google Search.

Accordingly, the replacement tool is called Huawei Search, and it is in the process of finding people to experience the application in the United Arab Emirates. This search engine is full of basic search features, searching websites, images, news, videos, etc. In addition, the company also offers a few different features such as viewing search history. right in the Settings section, change the search area and search range, language used and support dark mode of EMUI 10.
