

Windows 10 adds Light Theme, parallel to the Dark Theme

Windows 10 already has a dark theme, but now they are about to launch a bright theme.

Windows 10 already has a dark theme, but now they are about to launch a bright theme. The components of the interface, such as the taskbar, Start Menu, or dialog box, are all brighter and Microsoft finally creates a new desktop wallpaper for it.

The bright theme will appear on the next update of Windows 10 with the name 19H1, expected to be released around April 2019. Today it is available on Windows Insider Fast Ring mode, located in Insider Build 18282 version. This release of Windows will also help the machine run faster as Microsoft said.

When you turn on the light theme, everything will become brighter. This new theme also extends Windows 10 notifications to look very nice.

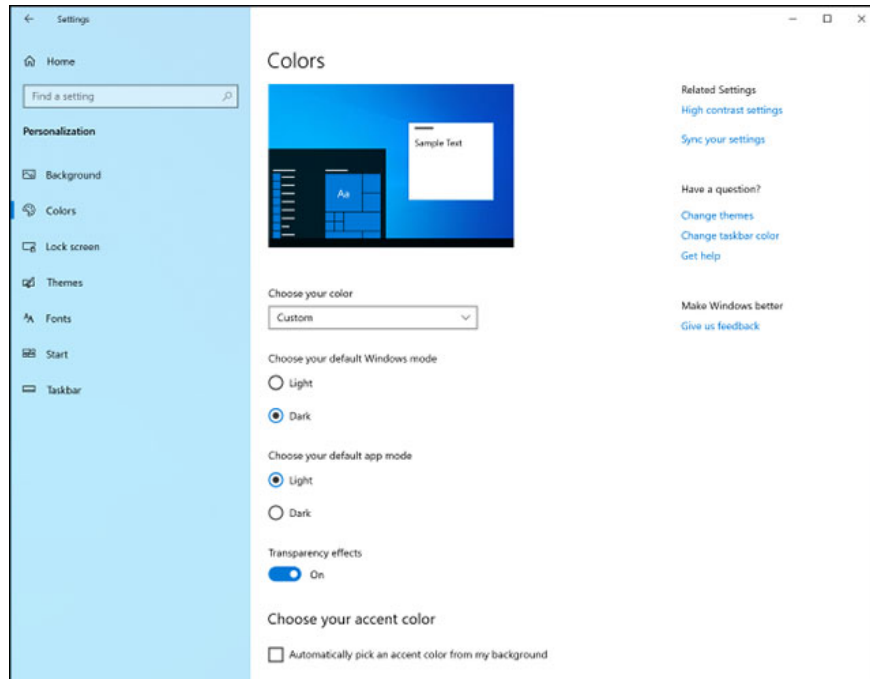

Notifications in Light Theme mode on new updates

You can rest assured that Microsoft will not automatically switch to the new theme right away. When upgrading, the default theme is still the taskbar, the Dark Start Menu and the light-colored application window as before.

The Settings app has its own option of Default Windows mode and Default app mode. If Windows selects dark and the application selects bright colors, you are using the default theme. If both are bright or dark, you have selected a light or dark theme.

In addition, Microsoft added new default wallpapers. You can activate on the Insider Build by going to Settings > Personalization > Themes and selecting Windows Light. The Print dialog of Store apps also has a bright theme, which was previously dark.

New theme options in the settings

Microsoft also made a few changes. For Windows 10 Professional users, Pause Updates will be on Settings> Update & Security> Windows Update, making it easy to find and stop updating.

Windows also automatically sets Active Hours to prevent it from restarting when updating for several hours when you are using your computer. If you enable this feature, you do not need to manually set it. New screen capture tools included on October 2018 Update also improved.

See more:

1. The official ISO Windows 10 October (1809) is available from Microsoft, please download and experience
2. Never upgrade the operating system from the first day
3. Microsoft began releasing October 2018 Update after the delay

You finished reading the article "Windows 10 adds Light Theme, parallel to the Dark Theme" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.