The problem is not that the programs do not work, but the order in which they are applied is wrong in this case. So what is the correct order?

The necessary tools for "good treatment" ouo.io are:

1. Hitman Pro
2. Microsoft Safety Scanner
3. AdwCleaner

1. Use Junkware Removal Tool:

First, restart your computer and enter Safe Mode.

Refer to the tutorial:

2. Enter Safe Mode with Windows 8
3. Run Safe Mode with Windows XP

Then, run the file JRT.exe , this tool will help users to remove auto-fill data - Auto Fill Data on the browser, and "handle" unnecessary plugins on Google Chrome (unfortunately is not available on Mozilla Firefox), it is imperative to stop the services - Service is running in background mode. And the time needed to complete this process is 10-20 minutes depending on your operating system, your computer configuration.

2. Use Hitman Pro:

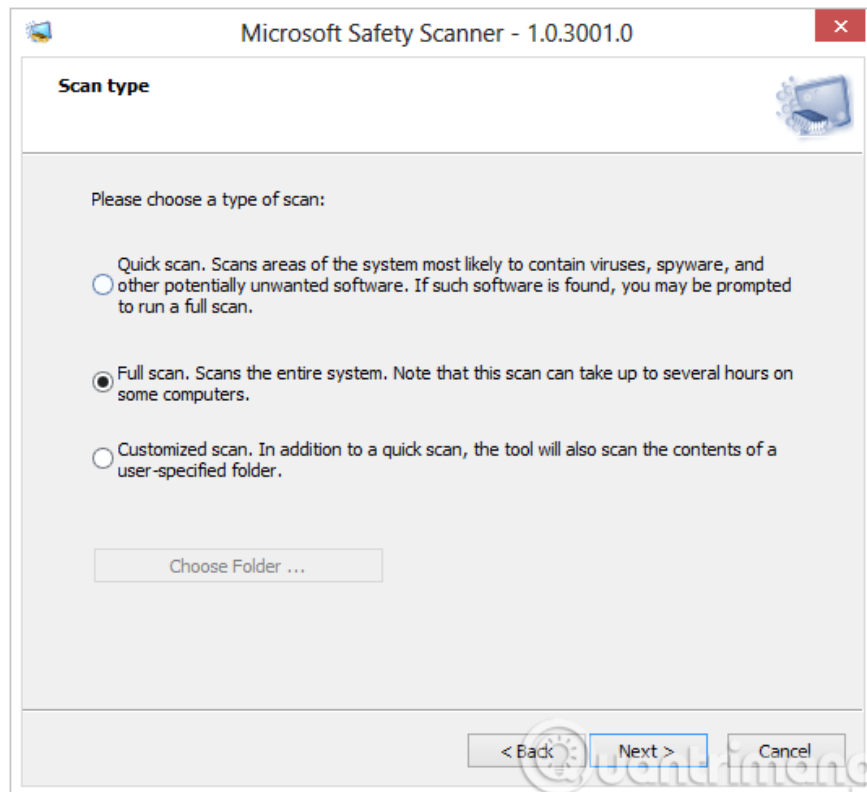

When JRT is finished, we switch to using "killer" - HitmanPro (remember to still connect to the Internet, because HitmanPro runs on Cloud platform). HitmanPro is a paid software, but still offers a 30-day trial, so it is safe to install and register properly. If HitmanPro detects any dangerous components, just apply the exclusion method: Delete - delete or Quarantine - quarantine.

3. Run Microsoft Safety Scanner:

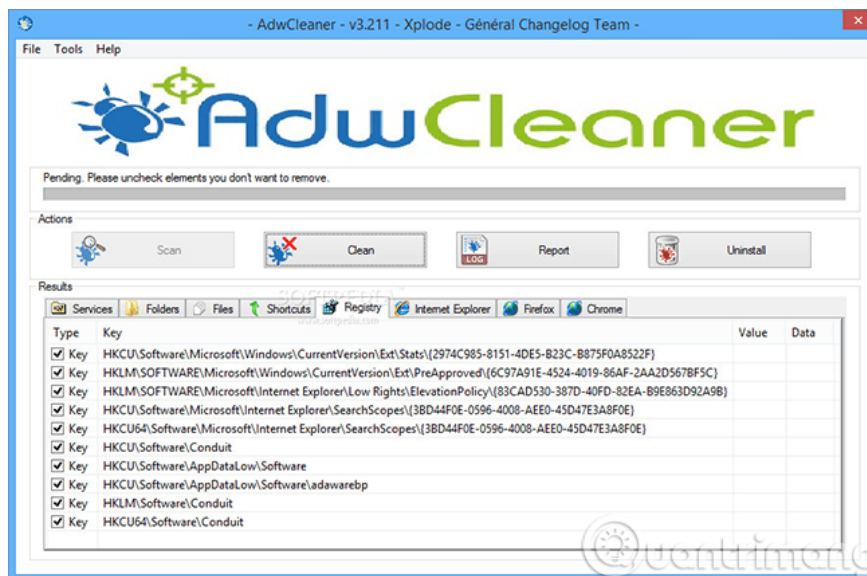

This is the longest time in all of our steps, so be sure to select the Full Scan section (the average 10TB hard drive will take about 1.5 hours on average):

When finished, the program will display a message asking to restart. Wait, turn it off and restart after completing step 4 below.

4. Run AdwCleaner:

Similar to the above 3 steps, run the program, and delete all detected dangerous components. Then restart the computer when requested.

The last step, you open the browser, access the website, click on the links to see if ouo.io is bothering again. If it is, repeat step 1> step 4 once more. So, TipsMake.com has guided you how to remove ouo.io from your
