

YouTube Gaming application officially closed on May 30

Recently, Google has confirmed that it will officially close the YouTube Gaming application on May 30. The entire platform will be bundled into the YouTube application to create a stronger home for the gaming community on YouTube.

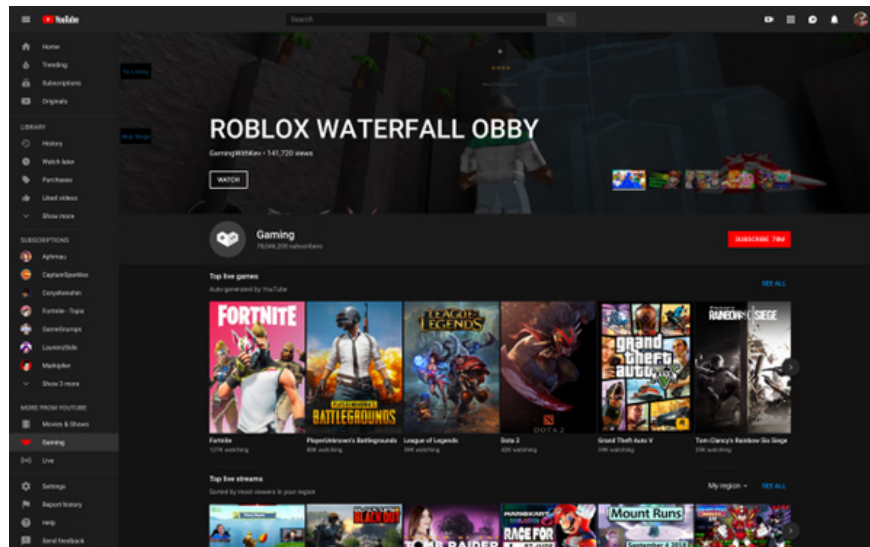

Recently, Google has confirmed that it will officially close the YouTube Gaming application on May 30. The entire platform will be bundled into the YouTube application to create a stronger home for the gaming community on YouTube.

After May 30, when accessing the YouTube Gaming application, users will be redirected to a new channel for games right on YouTube's main application.

Although the YouTube Gaming app is closed, if you still want to see all of your favorite game videos, users can access YouTube's main app at www.youtube.com/gaming.

YouTube Gaming is a platform to stream games with an impressive dark background interface, videos streaming games are arranged according to specific sections and titles. However, this application is not well received by many users.

Google has long been planning to integrate YouTube Gaming application with the standard YouTube platform instead of splitting it into two separate applications today. At the end of last year, Google said it would close the app in March. After two months of life extension, YouTube Gaming was eventually 'killed'.

You finished reading the article "YouTube Gaming application officially closed on May 30" edited by the TipsMake team. We hope this article has provided you with many useful tech tips and tricks. You can search for similar articles on tips and guides. Thank you for reading and for following us regularly.